

The Transaction Classification and Budget App

What can LDGR do for you?

- Track every transaction

Upload statements from every account and see it all in one ledger.

- Split spending into categories

Organize what you spend and sort what's not yet categorized.

- Build a real budget

Set spending limits or savings goals, by category or grouped together.

- See where money goes

Interactive reports with charts you control, not just static numbers.

- Get the big picture

One glance at Overview shows what actually needs your attention.

- Share with your household

Track finances together, safely, with approval-based access.

Downloading Transactions From Your Accounts

1

Log into your bank or credit card's website or app

2

Look for “Download,” “Export,” or “Statements”

Usually near your transaction or activity list

3

Choose CSV format if it's offered

4

Select a date range

A month or a full statement cycle both work well

Tip: Repeat for every account you want to track — LDGR keeps each account's history separate.

Uploading Transactions into LDGR

- 1 Go to Upload in the sidebar
- 2 Choose an existing account, or start a new one
- 3 Select your downloaded file
- 4 Match your file's columns to Date, Description, and Amount
LDGR guesses first — you just confirm or adjust
- 5 Review the preview, then confirm the import

Creating Or Renaming Categories

● Add a category

Give it a name that fits how you actually spend.

● Rename

Update it anytime without losing its history.

● Mark as income

Flag paychecks and other income so LDGR tells them apart from spending.

● Merge

Combine two categories into one.

● Exclude

Keep a category out of budgets and reports — handy for internal transfers.

Customizing Your Reports Page Categories

Some categories — a steady paycheck, rent — are so large they crowd out everything else in a chart.

Use the category chips above the chart to hide any category from view, one click at a time.

Hidden categories still count everywhere else in LDGR — Budget, Planning, everywhere. This only changes what the chart shows you.

Customizing Your Reports Page Categories

Categories shown in the charts

Hide a category from the bar and donut charts below without affecting anything else — the table still shows everything, and the category is still tracked normally in Budget and Planning. Handy for keeping something big and steady, like a paycheck or rent, from dominating the visual.

Grouping Categories into Budget Groups

Combine several related categories under one shared budget — like Groceries and Dining Out under a single “Food” limit.

Perfect for categories that only really make sense to track together.

How it works

- 1 Choose the categories that belong together
- 2 Set one budget amount for the whole group
- 3 LDGR adds up spending across every category inside it

Understanding Accumulate Budget Categories

Spend

For everyday costs. A limit that resets every period — going over is your warning sign.

Accumulate

For saving toward something. Money set aside over time, toward a target — more is always better.

Getting the most out of Accumulate

- Set a “Track Since” date
Backdate a goal you'd already started before adding it to LDGR.
- Watch your fund balance grow
LDGR keeps a running total as you contribute, period by period.

Backing Up Your Transaction and Budget Data

- 3 Download your Budget Backup
Every category budget, group, and savings goal
- 4 Store both files somewhere safe

Backing Up Your Transaction and Budget Data — Screen

Backup

Download everything as one CSV file, or rebuild the app's data from a backup file.

Order matters if you're restoring both: apply the ledger backup first, then the budget backup. Budget settings attach to categories by name — the ledger restore is what creates those categories in the first place, so applying the budget file before it (or without it) may leave some budgets with nothing to attach to.

Export

Downloads every transaction across all accounts — with its account and category — as a single CSV. Good as a local backup, or to open and review in a spreadsheet.

Download all data as CSV

Restore

Rebuilds accounts, categories, and transactions from a backup file — the same column format the Export button above produces (Account, Date, Description, Money Out, Money In, Category, Category Excluded, Category Income, Uploaded At, Upload Batch, Not A Duplicate, Counts Toward Period). This replaces everything currently in the app, it doesn't merge with it.

Choose backup file

Budget data

A separate backup just for your budget setup — category and group budgets, Accumulate targets and what's actually been set aside each period, and your planned income. Handy for saving your setup before experimenting, or restoring it if something's lost.

Download budget setup as CSV

Applying a budget file updates or creates categories and groups by name — unlike the restore above, it never deletes anything not mentioned in the file.

Choose budget file
